Advertisement

Property

Residential

Build-to-rent

Build-to-rent to solve housing affordability

Nila Sweeney Reporter

Aug 25, 2020 - 5.09pm

Build-to-rent developments could help solve the country's housing affordability crisis and boost the economy during the pandemic, but the federal and state governments must come to the party with broader tax concessions and lower land costs, industry advocates say.

First State Super chief investment officer Damian Graham said at the Committee for Economic Development of Australia (CEDA) event that a much larger build-to-rent (BTR) sector would have a positive impact on housing affordability, but growth in the sector was not as viable in Australia due to tax and planning settings.

Mirvac's first build-to-rent property at Indigo Pavilions, Sydney Olympic Park.

"In order for BTR projects to be successful, there needs to be a reduction in land tax and more release of state and federal land available for development," Mr Graham said.

"The Australian landscape has proven to be difficult with a higher cost of land holding it back, compared to some overseas markets.

"As a major investor in affordable housing, First State Super wants to expand our investments in this sector and see the barriers removed to make way for the market to grow."

Advertisement

Mr Graham said First State Super had invested around $250 million in the past 12 months and was looking to lift that investment to $400 million or more this year.

"We're setting ourselves what we think is a little bit of an aspirational target to double that again to $800 million in the near term," he said.

Despite the ambitious goal, Mr Graham said it was still small compared to the demand for affordable housing in the country.

"I think the challenging situation for us as investors is we know that it's just a drop in the ocean, in terms of the size of challenge with regards to social housing, so we'd like to see lots of institutional investors growing and building the sector."

RELATED Mirvac to shift BTR focus to NSW after 50pc cut on land tax

Mr Graham said the NSW government's decision to cut land tax for the next 20 years for new BTR projects was welcome, but more would be needed.

"The governments, industry and investors need to work together and respond to these challenging issues and allow for more investment opportunities of scale in affordable housing and build-to-rent developments," he said.

Brisbane Housing Company chief executive Rebecca Oelkers said 400,000 affordable housing were needed, and unlocking institutional investment in social and affordable housing at scale was a critical part of the solution.

"It's sad to see so many Australian investment funds putting their capital into infrastructure projects, including affordable housing, overseas," Ms Oelker said.

"We need to get the settings right to capture that investment here for the benefit of our low-income Australians."

National strategy

To address this, a cohesive national housing strategy for institutional investment in social and affordable housing was needed to create a steady and predictable pipeline of projects, she said.

"The policy settings that detract from social and affordable housing as an appealing investment prospect, things like taxation implications and risk allocations and the like, need to be addressed," Ms Oelker said.

"Lastly, really permanently solve the yield gap that affordable and social housing by their very nature will achieve, in comparison to some other investments that funds could make.

1 1 1

"And this yield gap could be closed through a number of different mechanisms including quite a shallow state or federal government financial or land contribution."

contribution." Leading property coverage delivered to your inbox Sign up to our new weekly Inside Property newsletter SIGN UP NOW Nila Sweeney writes on property from our Sydney newsroom. Email Nila at nila.sweeney@afr.com.au Save Share License article READ MORE Build-to-rent Property development Property investment Renting Property prices Commercial Real Estate CBRE CONTACT AGENT FOR LEASE NEGOTIABLE FOR LEASE

The Pavilion/388 George Street SYDNEY NSW

Offices

. 353 - 1 142m²

305 Montague Road WEST END QLD

Offices

. 180 - 600m²

LATEST IN RESIDENTIAL

Luxury property

Former MasterChef contestant snaps up $11.6m Mosman spread

'Curry king' Jimmy Seervai has bought two houses near Balmoral Beach with plans to eventually knock them down and rebuild a single three-level residence.

Aug 26, 2020 | Lucy Macken

Property market

Urban exiles are fuelling a suburban housing boom across the US

Low mortgage rates and the COVID-era lifestyle have sparked a land rush for houses outside pricey and crowded New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Aug 26, 2020 | Prashant Gopal and John Gittelsohn

Earnings season

Stockland investors buy Steinert's final earnings tale

Outgoing CEO sets the company up well-positioned to weather the COVID-19 storm in his last results announcement.

Aug 25, 2020 | Michael Bleby

Opinion Chanticleer

Stockland's window into COVID-19 recovery

As the country's single largest developer of new residential housing, Stockland is a barometer of a critical engine of economic growth. Its latest results give reason for optimism.

Aug 25, 2020 | Tony Boyd

Luxury property

This is Australia's most expensive house sold this year

There were multiple parties vying for the Vaucluse home of Vass Electrical Industries founder Nicholas Vass and his wife, Marion.

MOST VIEWED IN PROPERTY

- Former MasterChef contestant snaps up $11.6m Mosman spread
- 2 Urban exiles are fuelling a suburban housing boom across the US
- 3 Scentre talks tough as rent war flares up
- 4 This is Australia's most expensive house sold this year
- 5 Petrol king takes over Adelaide tower in $175m deal

Financial Review Magazine

How leaders dress for end of the world (and what it says about them)

30 mins ago | Lauren Sams

The property entrepreneur who wears Chanel on her days off

From haute couture kings to royalty: farewell to fashion's front row

BOSS

Companies should come clean on sexual harassment NDAs: super funds

Sally Patten

'Every day is like Christmas' at Australia Post

Why boards should be reviewing non-disclosure policies

Life & Leisure

Range anxiety be damned: 1800 kilometres in an electric Hyundai Kona

7 mins ago | Robert Pascoe

Manager finds freedom (and space to think) on his four bikes

The father-daughter duo making knitwear cool again

LUXURY

The unlikely beauty company that sells 17 products a minute

Lauren Sams

Australian designers join forces to win Chinese hearts

The Daily Habit of Successful People

MY ACCOUNT	~
SUBSCRIBE	~
ABOUT US	~
CONTACT	~

MAGAZINES	~
COLUMNS	~
MARKETS DATA	~
LISTS	~
EVENTS	~
OUR NETWORK	~
TERMS AND CONDITIONS	~

© Copyright 2020 The Australian Financial Review
Site Map